STEAM FARMING DVDS

FARMING WITH STEAM

This programme shows the impact on agriculture of steam in the 19th and early 20th century. It records in detail both portable engines and traction engines in action threshing, ploughing, hauling timber and driving a saw bench. Interviews with people who used to work with steam recall what the life was really like. Lesley Colsell, former Curator at the museum of East Anglian Life, gives a vivid account of how engines were managed and how they fitted into rural life.

POWER OF THE PAST

Bill Kemball's 'Power of the Past' event has quickly established itself as one of the most remarkable field demonstrations of vintage agricultural and allied machinery in Britain. The emphasis is firmly on working machines, not on static displays. The range shown in this recording of the 1998 event is broad, encompassing Gyrotillers, farm tractors & crawlers - all undertaking autumn cultivation - earth-moving equipment, military vehicles, steam engines, stationary engines & heavy horses. A large steam-driven reciprocating saw and a portable steam engine are among the many high-quality demonstrations. 60 mins #0522 $49.95

STEAM AT STRUMPSHAW

Norfolk's Strumpshaw steam museum is the venue for a rally held in wooded parkland each spring. Visitors to the 1999 event had the opportunity to see some thirty engines in steam, representing a wide cross-section of makes and types.

Highlights of this video include firing up a unique Savage engine, driving lessons on both a Fowler traction engine and a Foden steam wagon, and an insight into an engine driver's life - at least, cooking his breakfast. Work with saws and a stone crusher, the parade of steam engines and scale models, as well as three types of pumping engine operating in the museum are also included. Chris Opperman's commentary, scripted by Brian Bell, gives clear information about the machines, and the programme has been professionally filmed and edited by Jonathan Theobald at Country Films.
